

MARCH

SUNDAY	MONDAY	TUESDAY	WEDNESDAY	THURSDAY	FRIDAY	SATURDAY
	1 Write about a character who everyone thinks is guilty of something terrible but isn't.	2 Find a photo of yourself and write a narrative about the photographer in that moment.	3 Pick a small item from your desk drawer and write about a character who carries it around as a talisman.	4 Set your story in a small town where everyone is suspicious of newcomers.	5 A character in your story becomes aware that they are in a story.	6 Write about a contest with life or death stakes.
7 Your protagonist is visited by a comic book hero who needs their help.	8 Suitcase in hand, you head for the station.	9 Halfway through a fierce competition, your character is given the opportunity to cheat their way to victory: do they take it?	10 Write about a pirate captain obsessed with finding a mythical treasure.	11 It is your character's wedding day. While the vows are being said, someone from the crowd yells "I object!"	12 I could have been anything- a doctor, lawyer, architect. Instead, I became a carney.	13 She stepped off the elevator with a sense of purpose. This time, she would succeed.
14 Write a story about an unlikely friendship.	15 An escaped convict leaves behind evidence of his innocence for the search party to find.	16 Your main character wakes up on a rooftop, in their underwear.	17 This was the moment he'd been training for. He strapped on his helmet and got in position.	18 I don't think you're capable of love.	19 The antagonist dies, but the story doesn't end.	20 Write a story using only words found in the first and last sentences of each chapter of a book.
21 One day, the sun rose in the west and set in the east.	22 Write a scene borrowing the protagonist of a book you've read but cast as a different gender.	23 Set your story in a Gothic manor house.	24 Write a story about someone breaking a long family tradition.	25 Write a story that takes place in a waiting room.	26 Your main character finds an abandoned car, keys still inside, parked outside their home.	27 "Look out!" he shouted.
28 Write a story about change.	29 Write a story about an old family secret surfacing generations later.	30 Your main character is really a guardian angel in human form.	31 "Where am I?"
